

Ruben's Reading List for Success

"The books you read and the people you associate with will determine where you are in five years."

- Charlie "Tremendous" Jones

Becoming an expert in any subject is a byproduct of years of study fueled by a passionate desire to learn everything about the subject.

I've always been driven to learn anything that could possibly give me an edge in sports and in business. Only half of Americans have a library card. The average American reads one book a year. It only takes reading a book a month to be in the top 5% of readers in the US.

If you start reading a book a month in your field, before long you'll start earning more and in only five years you'll be considered an expert in your field.
