

Ruben's Reading List for Success

by 4-Decade Olympian Ruben Gonzalez - TheLugeMan.com

Becoming an expert in any subject is a byproduct of years of study fueled by a passionate desire to learn everything about the subject.

I've always been driven to learn anything that could possibly give me an edge in sports, business and life.

Only half of Americans have a library card. The average American reads only one book a year. It only takes reading a book a month to be in the top 5% of readers in the US.

If you start reading a book a month in your field, before long you'll start earning more, and in only five years you'll be considered an expert in your field.

Matthew, Mark, Luke & John combined into one gospel written in the first person.

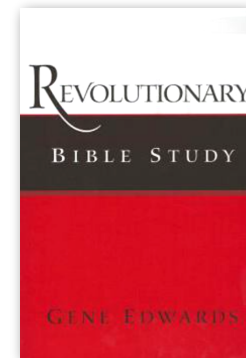

Revolutionary Bible Study - Gene Edwards

This easy-to-use guide helps you read through Acts and Paul's letters in the order they were written.

Plus, it tells you what was happening in Jerusalem, Rome and in the early churches when the letters were written.

What events prompted Paul to write the letters?

When you read the New Testament this way, everything makes much more sense, because you can see the story unfolding.

The First Century Diaries: Silas, Titus, Timothy, Priscilla, Gaius - 5 books

Gene Edwards - Historical fiction of Paul's journeys that help you understand the letters Paul wrote as he was planting churches. Easy reading and eye-opening.

Paul's Letters in Order

1st Journey Acts 13-14

Galatians

2nd Journey Acts 15-18

1 Thessalonians

2 Thessalonians

3rd Journey Acts 19-21

1 Corinthians

2 Corinthians

Romans

1st Roman Imprisonment Acts 21-26

Colossians

Ephesians

Philemon

Philippians

Between Imprisonments

1 Peter

1 Timothy

Titus

Hebrews (Barnabas)

2nd Roman Imprisonment Acts 28

2 Timothy

Aside - The Gospel of Mark was written before Matthew.

It's shorter, easier to read, and doesn't begin with a long, boring, genealogy.

Read Mark first. Especially if you're a new Christian.
